GALILEE VILLAGER STABBED TO DEATH

TIBERIAS, Saturday. — Mohammed Dibi al Khilaf, 50, of Beita village, Central Galilee, was found murdered near the village yesterday morning. He had been stabbed 10 times in the back and throat.

Traces leading to Magher village were found at the scene of the murder.

Police interrogated dozens of villagers and detained Hisham Esmanna, whose brother was murdered at the same place about a year ago.

Nahman Fellman, Citrus Veteran, Dies

TEL AVIV, Saturday. — The death took place in the Municipal hospital here yesterday of Nahman Fellman, at the age of 70.

The deceased was the son of Sarah Fellman who planted the first Jewish citrus grove near Jaffa, and was himself prominent in citrus planting and in the wine trade. He was one of the first houses in Tel Aviv when the suburb was established in 1909.

He leaves a large family, some of whose members are prominent in law and accountancy circles here.

The funeral will leave the hospital at 3 p.m. tomorrow for the Tel Aviv Old Cemetery.

Ernst Kahn: 70

A familiar figure in the financial and economic life of the country, Mr. Ernst Kahn, 70, was his 70th birthday today.

Born in Augsburg, Bavaria, Mr. Kahn, after completing his studies in the U.S., joined the editorial staff of the "Frankfurter Zeitung," then the leading democratic newspaper, where, together with Mr. Peretz Nakhail (now Minister of Agriculture), he conducted the economic department.

He also served as a member of the Frankfurt Municipal Council and in great measure was responsible for large housing schemes executed after World War I.

After leaving journalism, Mr. Kahn became the director of the important banking firm of Speyer-Billig.

In 1925, he settled in Jerusalem, where he has been active ever since as a director of national institutions, founder of the investment trust P.I.A. and as a member of the board of A.R.A.

His publications include a book on birth statistics, the editorship of "Wirtschaftskurven," and, jointly with Mr. Nakhail, a guide book on commercial sections of newspapers, still a best seller. He has also contributed several articles to The Jerusalem Post.

700 Returnees Ask For 'Second Chance'

LYDDA AIRPORT, Saturday (JTM). — The 700 emigrants who left Israel to return to Morocco have now ceased their anti-Israel propaganda and about a third of them want to come back here, Mr. Moshe Kol, member of the Jewish Agency Executive, reported here yesterday. He returned by El Al from a five-week visit to Europe and North Africa.

Mr. Kol said that no large-scale immigration from North Africa could be expected this year, but some 600 youngsters might come through Youth Aliya.

While in France, Mr. Kol represented Israel at the International Conference of Youth Aliya.

He announced that a delegation from the Youth Aliya organization in Britain, headed by Lord Balfour, member of the author of the 1917 Declaration, is to visit Israel at the end of this month.

Hadassah Launches Study Of Jewish Culture, Traditions

A two-year study by leading educators and sociologists in the basic values in Jewish culture and traditions has been initiated by Hadassah. Mrs. Rebecca Shulman, National President of the organization, announced last week in New York.

The study, which is being conducted by a committee of leading educators and sociologists, will be published in book form.

The purpose of the study is to indicate how these concepts have influenced and shaped Jewish life throughout the centuries, what has been their effect on civilization and how they have exerted universal influence.

The findings of the study, for which $25,000 has been allocated, will be published in book form.

The need for an intensification of the study of Hebrew among American Zionists was stressed by Mrs. Shulman. She announced that the Board members of the 1,200 chapters throughout the U.S. as well as the National Board, have pledged themselves to learn 1,000 Hebrew words.

She expressed the belief that the new education programme would reach masses of Jews throughout the U.S. since the study of Hebrew will permeate to the entire family from the mother.

Hadassah will also encourage American Jewish parents to visit Israel, and to send their children for one year's study following their high school or college graduation.

Mrs. Shulman estimated that 8,000 Hadassah members would visit Israel before the end of the year.

A four-point programme designed to "clarify the objectives of the Zionist movement" was announced by the national president. The programme calls for the fostering of a creative Jewish life in America; the deepening of a sense of identification with Israel through strongly knit spiritual and cultural ties; personal participation in the development of Israel as a democratic stronghold in the Middle East; and the study of Hebrew.

LITTLE AVRAHAM DOES AS HE LIKES

Together with the articles that in the Tel Aviv-Jerusalem Post on Friday afternoon was a five-year-old boy.

Taken to Jerusalem, police headquarters, the lad would say only that his name was Avraham and that he loved to ride on trains.

During the investigation, news was received from Hertz that the son of David Sufi had been missing for several hours.

Mr. Sufi told the police, when he arrived in Jerusalem yesterday morning, that his son Avraham had been missing for several hours.

Finns, Israel Share Colours, Standards

Jerusalem Post Reporter TEL AVIV, Saturday. — Mr. Toivo Kala, the Finnish Charge d'Affaires, said yesterday that his Government was eager for firm commercial relations with Israel.

He spoke at the weekly luncheon of the Industrial and Commercial Club, opening his address with words of regret that he was unable to announce the conclusion of a trade agreement between Israel and Finland.

The agreement is now being negotiated between Mr. Kala and the Finnish Government.

Mr. Kala stated that he hoped it would be signed shortly and that he had waited in his office for news prior to coming to the luncheon.

Open War in French Communist Party

PARIS, Saturday (Reuter). — A major clash between the two top leaders of the French Communist Party came into the open today with a violent attack by acting secretary general Jacques Duclos against his fellow secretary Auguste Lecœur whom he accused of trying to seize the Party leadership.

Mr. Duclos, who has replaced the ailing secretary general, M. Maurice Thorez, now living on the Riviera, launched his blistering attack against Mr. Lecœur at yesterday's meeting of the Party's Central Committee.

A full account of the Duclos statement was published in the Party organ, "L'Humanité."

He accused Mr. Lecœur of conducting an "adventurist policy" and holding "opportunist conceptions." But the main point of the attack was that Mr. Lecœur had tried to make the organization a department which he headed.

René Camille, French Communist Deputy and member of the Party's Central Committee, was found gassed today in his uncle's one-room flat where he stayed when in Paris. A gas fire was found turned on but not lit.

headed a substitute for the Party leadership.

Mr. Duclos charged that Mr. Lecœur had also tried to set himself up as a screen between the Party leadership and the provincial organizations, and had interfered sharply without any reason in the activities of other organs of the Party.

Political quarters saw this attack as an indication of a bitter struggle for power in the top leadership of the French Communist Party from which Mr. Duclos, the party's Parliamentary leader, had emerged as victor.

RIVALRY IN CAIRO

Sudanese Decry Egyptian Crisis

By RUSSELL THOMAS

CAIRO (OPNS). — WITH the resumption of the Presidency by General Nagib, normality to all appearances has been restored in Egypt. But the strains put upon the military regime by recent events cannot be brushed aside so easily.

It is apparent that the public sympathies which were roused in the Army in favour of Nagib were even more directed against the intervention of military government which, it was expected, would be the result of government by the Revolution.

It is apparent that the public sympathies which were roused in the Army in favour of Nagib were even more directed against the intervention of military government which, it was expected, would be the result of government by the Revolution.

DISTRICT OF NAZARETH

Editor, The Jerusalem Post

Sir,—The Arab community in Nazareth is indeed very happy with the lifting of the restrictions and with the other facilities which the Government has recently granted to the Arabs of Israel.

However, may I call the attention of His Excellency, the Minister of Justice, to his statement that conditions of the Arab minority should be improved. It is my opinion that this will be accomplished and a better feeling towards the problems of the State of Israel created in Washington, London and the U.N. when Nazareth is established as an independent district.

The District of Nazareth should include the towns of Nazareth and Acre, as well as the areas of Galilee and the Golan Heights. The various Government departments should be opened there and law courts, including a District Court, should be established. Jews and Arabs should be appointed in all these offices; in time, higher officers and judges who are well qualified could move into the Arab community. Such a step would really convince the world that Israel is treating her Arab minority well.

Yours etc.,

NICOLA ATALLAH

ENGLISH EDUCATION

Editor, The Jerusalem Post

Sir,—As a pupil of Class Yud Bet, Kibbutz Beit Hashitta, I should like to ask Mr. A. Shereh, who wrote a bitter critical letter about English instruction in Israel in The Jerusalem Post of January 28, what great calamity he thinks would befall us if "a lack of knowledge of English" cut us off from Western civilization (which is what I suppose he means by "world culture").

Does Mr. Sherman know that a thousand years ago the inhabitants of Europe were barbarians? Is he aware that Western civilization sprang from the Bible? "The Book"—and that the Jewish people are sometimes known as "The People of the Book".

Twenty per cent of our Knesset Members know no English, neither do about two-thirds of our population; neither do countless millions of people in other countries who have standards of culture of their own. English is very important for commerce, political purposes, etc., but we have a better and older culture of our own than have other countries.

Yours etc.,

DOV ISRAELI
Beit Hashitta.

CRIMINAL IMMIGRANTS

Editor, The Jerusalem Post

Sir,—At the moment when the Knesset is faced with the question of adopting or rejecting an Amendment to the "Law of Return" which would authorize the Minister of Interior to refuse entry into the country to those Jews having a criminal record, I feel it might not be out of place to point out that in Chapter V of "The Jewish State," devoted to "The Society of Jews and the Jewish State," in the paragraph dealing with "Reciprocity and Extradition," Theodor Herzl writes as follows: "A transition period during which we shall not allow criminals to enter except on completion of their sentence, must be foreseen. We shall let them in later without restrictions. The criminals themselves must then be able to start a new life among us..."

And later on: "...a new existence can cure even a criminal."

Yours etc.,

The Week in the Knesset

Finance Minister's Victory

By GERDA LUFT

WHEN the Minister of Finance opened the budget debate in the Knesset a couple of weeks ago, it seemed that he would have a difficult time against attacks not only from the Opposition, but also from numerous members of the coalition ranks. For a free-for-all fight was on, in which general unreasoning over the large size of the proposed budget drew plain speaking from members of the General Zionists and even some criticism from the ranks of the Mapai.

Mapai last Tuesday night took the floor and dealt with each of his opponents. He talked a little too freely of tens of millions for the taste of some doubters, but a Minister of Finance who is sanguine and clings to his optimistic prophecies has accustomed the House to this. On the whole, it was a debate between doubters and believers, the Minister of Finance leading the believers in their statements that the huge expenditure would be covered by appropriate revenue.

The opposition within the coalition, those Members who believe that a diversion of so great a percentage of national income into the public coffers as proposed by the Treasury would hamper production and thus increase unemployment, succeeded in stating their case on general lines. However, they did not point out an alternative way of building up a budget or to indicate the places where substantial savings could be made.

In other words, the adherents of a smaller budget showed ably where things go wrong, but failed to indicate how they could be put right.

Limited Knowledge

This state of affairs is probably to be explained by lack of knowledge of the administrative machinery. Proposals for budgetary cuts must be based on an intimate acquaintance with the structure of governmental machinery, and there apparently were few Members of the Knesset who can boast of such knowledge. These few prefer to fight for their aims in the Finance Committee, where the legal matters are discussed. There are experts among Members on agriculture, on industry, on retailing. But as far as administration and the working of the governmental machine are concerned, only very few if any of the Members have first-hand, practical and comprehensive theoretical knowledge. More than fatigue and the modified weekly schedule, this may be responsible for the failure of the debate on the working of the Ministries.

Little Analysis

The general debate on the budget was followed by discussions on the various Ministries. The first batch was made up of the office of the President, the State Comptroller and the Knesset. As the introduction by the Minister of Finance gave only a slender lead, the debate lacked profundity, and its pace was almost terrifying. With the exception of the opposition from the right and left, members apparently were not prepared for this sort of discussion. Here was an opportunity for the House to survey its own
